DEEP HATRED LAUNCHED HIM INTO POLITICS

These articles on Adolf Hitler are adapted from m terial gathered by the author for his monumental history of Nazi Germany, THE RISE AND FALL OF THE THIRD REICH, published by Simon & Schuster, and copyrighted, 1960, by William L. Shirer. It is based largely on the captured secret & erman documents, on the diaries and, memoirs of leading Nazi officials and generals, and on the author's personal experience as an American correspond-

Music critic Paul Henry Lang, reviewing Gould's performance with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra of Beethoven's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 4, said the planist's eccentricities "made me wonder whether he is an exhibitionist or just a natural nut."

The reviewer also criticized the conductor for too much hip-swinging.

"This sort of thing leads nowhere and both these fine artists should be satisfied with their extraordinary gifts," he concluded. "They don't need any buffoonery to make their presence feit."

Lack of Farm Policy Rapped by Martin

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA—The Progressive Conservative govern-ment has not improved the Canadian farm position, Liberal agriculture critic Paul Martin said Friday.

Micholas Mandziuk, representing Marquette, made the statement during debate on a private bill sponsored by Conservative MP Maurice Allard, Sherbrooke, which called for a distinctive Canadian anthem and a new national holiday. The bill did not come to a yote.

Mr. Mandziuk's comment highlighted a sharp split on symbols of Canadian sovereignty between Progressive Conservatives from Quebec and from other parts of the country.

Mr. Allard said Canada

Two Solitudes

MR. FLEMING, LIKE MANY politicians before him, has been impaled on the horns of Hansard. That inconvenient parliamen-tary record shows him declaring, in that all Canadian governments are fully responsible for the monetary policies of the Bank of Canada. But once he moved from the opposition to the treasury benches Mr. Fleming suddenly changed his mind. He now insists that neither he nor the government has any control whatever over the

The Liberal government was thus blamed for high interest rates; a Conservative government, operating under the same law, has nothing do with interest rates, so-called "tight money" or, indeed, any aspect of monetary management.

The minister of finance, think, is wrongly attacked for changing his mind. That is a right inherent in politics and common to all politicians (and non-elected persons as well). The true criticism of Mr. Fleming is that his present policy is simply unworkable and, in fact, doesn't work.

Mr. Fleming pretends that his finance department and the central bank work in separate compartments, two soundproof solitudes divided by the narrow width of Wellington Street. He manages the government's fiscal policy, its taxes, expenditures and borrowings. Directly across the street Mr. Coyne manages the money supply and in-terest rates. Like East and West, the twain shall never meet.

But they do meet, every day and every hour of the day. For Mr. Fleming's fiscal policies constantly affect Mr. Coyne's monetary poli-cies, and vice versa.

It was Mr. Fleming's huge deficits, for example, that compelled Coyne to expand the money oly in 1958 when the bank created enough new dollars to buy up the government's bonds, unsaleable otherwise.

Thus the government's fiscal the say.

escape responsibility for the over-all management of the nation's affairs.

Mr. Flemmg was right about that in 1956, and wrong now. If he were right now the nation would be without a government in the management of some of its most vital business; or rather the government would be in the hands of Mr. ment would be in the hands of Mr. Coyne, a great public servant, but a non-elected person.

so. Mr. Towers explained the proper relationship between government and bank when he said that, as government and bank when he said that, as government between the general proposal to give under developed essential imports to feed their people countries technical aid.

Mr. Fleming refuses even to discuss this question, insisting—against all precedent and common sense—that he and Mr. Coyne have nothing to do with each other officially. But responsibility for national policy cannot thus be shuffled off on Mr. Coyne if the government is indeed the govern government is indeed the govern-

This does not mean, however, that the government should interfere in the daily operations of the bank and no government has done Marshall Plan, was based on the idea They had the education, the administration of the daily operations of the bank and no government has done

> But when the policy of foreign aid was applied to truly underdeveloped countries with an illiterate population and a feudal or tribal social order, the results have been very disappointing. A great amount of the disillusionment in Congress and among our people stems from hearing about the waste of money in countries which are not advanced enough to use it effectively. There is little doubt, I believe, that the Congress and the people will approve the con-tinuation of foreign aid when the new approach has been fully and patiently explained. That cannot, of course, be done in one speech and one message.

I think there is an answer to these questions. But I do not think that the convincing answer is to say to our people: If you don't pay up, Khrushchev will get you, Castro will get you. If foreign aid is to be effective, it must be It cannot be made to work by keeping Congress and the taxpayers in a state of hysteria and fear.

The principle of the true answer to be found in President Kennedy's inaugural address:

Comprising a quarter of the earth's population and representation from every sector of the globe, the Commonwealth's objective of "nothing less than the complete abolition of the means of waging war of any kind" is one that should win the support of all peoples.

Such a sentiment, of course, means little if unaccompanied by some suggestion as to how it is to be achieved. To this end the conference urged an immediate resumption of armament talks between East and West and a broadening of negotiations to include other nations.

IN ITS STRONG PLEA FOR the United Nations, It will be FROM OTTAWA gratifying to him to find the Com-monwealth family solidly behind him in this endeavor—and it should strengthen him in his struggle with

The Tories have been taking poll after poll in Esquimalt-Saanich. One held last fall showed they would lose the seat to the Liberals, and that, more than anything, convinced Mr. Diefen-baker he should stall in setting the date.

Another factor was the trouble the Conservatives had in arriving at a candidate. The PM's former executive assistant, Gowan Guest, was in the running for a while, and his entry caused some concern in the local organization.

The candidate finally picked by the Tories, Reeve Chatterton of Saanich, was being pushed hard by James A. The Conservatives are determined to keep the Liberals out of the West, as part of their grand strategy for the next federal general election. barely a ripple in the capital.

Recent events have made it inevitable there must be a show-down between the two major parties on subjects of national importance, subjects that were barely touched upon in the by-elections held last October.

A speech by the Liberal candidate in Esquimalt on the subject of defence policy may have set the tone for the campaign. The Tories wanted to fight Esquimalt-Saanich as a popularity con-test, but they will find it difficult to avoid the major issues if the Liberals raise the major issues, such as defence.

The fact the seat was last held by Mr. Pearkes gives it considerable tige in the eyes of politicians, and a Liberal win would be a tremendous boost to the party nationally. The same holds true for the Conservatives, who must instill some enthusiasm in their followers in preparation for the next general election.

A few days or weeks ago, I was de-lighted to see that you had declared war against the crime of murdering the English language.

May I submit for annihilation my own pet grievance: "different . . . than." This is becoming alarmingly common: this is becoming anarmingly common. during the last ten years I have heard it on CBC, on "Kindergarten of the Air." and on other programs labelled as "educational." Our ears have become Insensitive, apparently; school teachers and other well educated people hear this quite often, and don't even want to servam.

Since writing the above, I have had in my hands the program of the "Caucasian Chalk Circle"; on the back I find: "Epic in form, it deals with emotions at a different level than the purely psychoanalytical ones in which theatre is most usually involved."—well, really! EDITH H. MAURICE.

Let us investigate a hypothetical case of a union with a thousand mem bers each paying $5 per month dues, affiliated to a political party and its share of the expenses are $500 per month. Say that under a situation of "contracting out" few of the members, say none, are prepared to face scornful looks or what have you of the officials. Thus the contributary share of each member is $500/1000 or 50 cents per month. Now in a changeover to "contracting"

Contrast

I would like to say a word of thanks to one of our public utility companies for the splendid and rapid way in which they handled the situations during our past rather inclement weather.

The B.C. Electric Company is to be congratulated. Power was off in certain localities but was restored within a few hours. On the other hand our other pub-lic utility company, the B.C. Telephone Company, has given the paying public very poor or practically no service at all. They were confronted with no worse under which the B.C. Electric Company labored, and while power was restored within a few hours, our telephone, for one, has been out-of-order for over two days, and service, at time of writing, has not yet been restored. On 'phoning the "Repair Service" of the B.C. Telephone, from another 'Phone, I waited for eight rings (service?) before the disinterested operator finally answered, and informed me, "it will be checked into," please note: "will" not "has been," so it will probably be two or three more days before service is finally restored.

And this by-the-way is the third or fourth time this has happened to our
'phone in the past three or four months.

Another question I am interested in: at Public Utility Commission or Board approves the rates charged by the B.C. Telephone Company? Our rates keep quietly going up but there are no inquiries into, or boards of investigation about, these increases, they vestigation and are just accepted.

Stepping Out

For a long time I have been dis-tressed at the thoughtlessness of mothers and sometimes fathers, who are guilty of racing their offspring along our city streets at a break-neck speed. In fact they are supposed to walk as fast as their elders in spite of the differences in strength and length of leg.

Recently a woman passed me drag-ging a three-and-a-half-year-old on the double. The mother walked so fast that she soon outdistanced me, although I was by no means walking slowly. She walked quickly through Eaton's and without slackening her pace charged down the basement steps dragging the child after her. The child stumbled and fell. The mother paused just long enough to scold and lift her bodily by

P&O-Orient announce the first cruise of S.S. ORIANA -world's newest luxury liner

You can explore Hawail, the Fiji Islands, New Zealand and Australia next Spring on P&O-Orient's golden new superliner for as little as $700. Read the details below. Then see your travel agent soon!

This is the cruise of the 1961 season. Thirtyfive days of discovering the romantic South Pacific aboard the luxurious Oriana, fresh from her maiden voyage to England.

You'll have time to pick orchids and learn the hula in Hawaii. Turn back the clock at a native feast in Fiji. Roam through a Maori village in New Zealand. And you have four days in Sydney-where the ship is your hotel

At sea you can spend sun-drenched days swimming (Oriana has three pools, two of them in tourist), playing deck sports, meeting new friends or just plain relaxing. At night there are sparkling parties, dances, masquerade balls, movies and concerts.

The happy thing is, you can choose the way you travel. If the sky's the limit, you can go first class (from $958 to $3152) - and if you want to have the time of your life, but not go overboard on budget, you can go tourist for as little as $700. The service in both classes is superbly British. And your meals are in the great Continental tradition. P&O-ORIENT LINES

SPORTS DIARY

By JIMMY CANNON

MIAMI BEACH-The greatness of Floyd Patterson as a heavyweight is a hoax. It exists solely in his own mind, which is the only ring where he performs his secret marvels. He sees a vision of himself against which he measures all his fights, as if the illusion were the truth. It is his custom after most of his scuffles to demean his actions as if they were a temporary diminishment from the permanent wizardry created by his nimble imagination.

wizardry created by his nimble imagination.

Careless reporters describe Patterson as an uncomplicated kid, candid and shy. But he is a cunning propagandist and this may be his finest skill as a pug. Once again, at a press conference, Patterson toiled as a crusader in the cause to present him as one of the spectacular champions. But, after watching him labor across six rounds to knock out Ingemar Johansson eventually, he must be regarded as more a gifted publicist than a champion.

The repartee with the press has become repetitious. It more a gifted publicist than a champion.

The repartee with the press has become repetitious. It was the exact theme he followed after incompetent rumbles with Pete Rademacher, Tommy Jackson, Roy Harris and Brian London. He concedes that he has not fulfilled his Brian London. He concedes that he has not further his potential and regretfully declines to define the reasons for an ineptness which is nastily comical in a champion. The conception of Patterson as a great champion originally was uttered by Cus D'Amato, his manager, who now is assigned the duties of a messenger in a public discussion of their relationship. their relationship.

He has the instincts of a great champion because he got up twice in a first round to spill Johansson, but not the ability. This is a trait you expect in fighters. They bring that with them to the gym on their first visit. It is frequently found in four-round preliminary kids who last for brutal years on gameness. The great champions must have coverage but it is a minor attribute. urage, but it is a minor attribute.

In three fights with Johansson, Patterson has been knocked down nine times. He was standing on his feet when the referee intervened and stopped the first fight. His opponent has been a guy who has never achieved the physical condition he should.

Johansson was crippled by fat in their third fight, an inmate of an obese body which was drained of its stamina after a couple of rounds. But, depleted and exhausted as he was, Johansson consistently struck Patierson with a right-hand lead, which is the sucker's punch. If he had been shaped by exercise to preserve his vitality, he would have knocked Patterson out. The champion, who is described as a young man without malice or harm after he takes his gloves off, is meaner away from his trade. He has become one of the devious statesmen of the fight racket and is now the boss of the act. Craftily, using humor to make it all seem good-natured, Patterson blamed the advice of his corner for running into the right hands.

Assassin Offers Funeral Oration

• The next fight he has, Patterson said at the prolonged interview which was bright with his wit, will be promoted by Feature Sports, Inc., which will be governed by Tom. Boland, a prim, hushed attorney who was a law professor at St. John's University. The agreement to continue with this firm was a rebuke to Cus The Mus, who has shouted in interviews that never again would Patterson box for this despised company.

But the champion, after declaiming he would make decisions on all propositions after The Mus brought Cus and I are still close," he said, the assassin deliver-Ing the funeral oration at his victim's burial, services.

It is obvious now why The Mus ducked such pugs as Zora Folley and Eddie Machen when they were accepted as the leading contenders.

Never once has Patterson objected to the unethical practices The Mus employed to protect him. In Seattle, where Rademacher, an amateur, knocked him down, the referee was Tommy Loughran, a crony of The Mus.

One of London's seconds was Nick Baffi, who was planted there only because he was an intimate of D'Amato's. The manager forced one of his old partners in amateur pugs on Johansson for a 10 per cent piece the whistle on the surreptitious matter.

The guy, who can a lunchroom, was unloaded by the New York State Athletic Commission when Johansson blew

He slugged the fight journalists with his humility in post-fight interview. Did you hit your peak in training too soon?" he was I'd rather not look for excuses," he said. "In the next fight it will be corrected. He has been doing it for a long while now and the devices hayen't been repaired. But he said it before and probably will again with that smile which suggests that this evening was merely a brief lapse from greatness.

"I was terrible," he said.

"I agree with him. But I didn't regard this observation as the summation of one night of violence. It was a valid identification of Floyd Patterson as a heavyweight champion.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's summer horse racing program may be cut in half as a result of a meeting of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association Friday night.

The horsemen voted to stick by their demands for $1,025 minimum purses and announced they would race 40 days under that structure rather than the original 79 days at a reduced rate of possibly $900.
Unless the operators—the combined B.C. Turf and Ascot Jockey Club now operating as the B.C. Jockey Club—accedes to their minimum purse demands, it's likely that racing won't start here until July in tead of May 12.

It will be up to the B.C. Racing Commission to set the new dates if no agreement is reached.

office, links you by radio to mobile units in all your company cars and trucks.

FAST - This radio system lets you erve your customers better and faster, se drivers and other employees can be sent where they're needed without returning to headquarters for instructions.

ECONOMICAL - You get the most out of your manpower and equipment by reducing unnecessary mileage. Your charges are proportionate to your use of the system. You pay a fixed monthly charge for the dispatcher unit and for each mobile unit, plus 8 cents per minute when you are talking to your vehicles. You lease this system from B.C. Telephone, so there is no capital outlay, and complete maintenance of the equipment is provided. PRIVATE - Other companies using 'Direct Dispatch" cannot hear the conversations between your dispatcher.

FULLY AUTOMATIC - No teleone operator is required. When you lift the desk phone, your voice travels to the transmitter on a nearby mountain, and from there to your mooile units. If the system is in use, you will hear a busy signal on your phone. The equipment automatically remembers that you wish to call, and rings you back when the radio channel is clear.

Great heavens! Every birdwatcher dreams of sighting rare and un-usual specimens, but the migratory scene at right is ridiculous. Not only is this flight a mockery of the grand old tradition of birds of a feather flock-ing together, but it con-sists of a number of flying creatures and objects the likes of which have never been seen. How never been seen. How-quickly can you point out at least 12 intruders —"reare" specimens party crashers, UFO's "runidentified flying ob-jects), etc.?

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

By Stuart Keate =

My friend George ("Rebel") Mowat is in an angry, sputtering mood these days. Normally the most earefree of souls, Rebel goes into orbit every time someone mentions the "pruning" being done at Beacon Hill Park.

Beacon Hill Park.

For almost 40 years, as the voice of the Grey Line, the Inimitable Reb has been extolling the glories of these booky dells. In particular, he loves our stately fir trees. Any assault on them he regards as a personal affront.

But the firs are being topped, branched and "thinned out." The chirp of the robin is being drowned out by the whine of the power-saw. There's sawdust on the meandering foot-paths. Vast patches of brown earth mark the spot where centuries-old trees, have been uprooted. Quaint, winding roads have been closed off.

The other day Rebel took me on a personally-conducted

The other day keeps took he on a personary conducted drive around the park.

"Where are the firs?" he shouted. "They're turning this place into a big, flat flower garden.' Anybody can grow flowers but only God can make a tree!"

He drove out to Clover Point. "Look back there," he cried. "See any big trees? Of course not! Pretty soon the only thing left standing around here will be the totem pole."

I remarked that Clover Point had a rather attractive outlook.

"Sure it has," said Reb. "But what about comfort sta-

"Sure it has," said Reb. "But what about comfort stations? How far is a man supposed to walk?"

He pulled the car up beside the boat ramp. "What a waste of money!" he snorted. "They tell me it cost $17,000 and it's almost impossible to launch a boat down there. Too rough. If you want to see a real ramp, take a look at the one the James Bay boys built, over by the VMD. Just a lot of working guys, did it all themselves on a voluntary basis. It's a credit to the city."

We drove slowly back towards the park, along the water-

"Look," said Rebel, sadly. "That hillside used to be covered with broom, a beautiful sight. Now it's just about all gone. They're moving the Speakers' Corner over here hoping it will blow them into the sea. Nobody will be there to listen. And where is Marilyn Bell's cairn? All the Eastern tourists ask about it. Can you see it?"

We drove west, towards the playing field, the sight of which aroused Rebel to new heights of indignation.

"We used to play baseball out there," he recalled. "Tremendous crowds. In fact, we got so successful that they threatened to have the police stop us. Ask Pete Sallaway. I told them to bring on the police, we were going to play. So what did they do? They plowed up the field." "Look," said Rebel, sadly. "That hillside used to be cov-

"The last straw," said Rebel, "I heard the other day they were thinking of cutting that down. Somebody's got to stop this destruction."

On the way back to the hotel, along Belleville Street, we paused to look at the topiary garden in the old Pendray home, now Loretto Hall.

Suddenly Rebel slapped his hand on the dashboard. "Stop!" he cried. "Stop! Look what they've done! Cut down that fine, old hawthorne hedge! One of the attractions of the day. Wall File he." Well, I'll be -

The Bridal Aisle

During the early part of this year many young couples repeated marriage vows in Victoria. Among them were the attractive brides and handsome grooms on this page today. They are now settled in their first homes, three couples in the city and the other two in Vancouver and in Red Deer. Alberta.

Quadra Bible Chapel was setting for the recent wedding of Mr. and Mrs Robert James Streeton. Bride, the former Elizabeth Winnie Park, wore a gown of net over taffeta with Alencon lace trimmed bodice and full hooped skirt. Embroidery edged the elbow-length veil and she carried red roses and white hyacinths. The couple spent their honeymoon in the United States and are now living at 1044 Tillicum Road. (Photo by S. H. Draper).

Holyrood House was setting for a reception at which Mr. and Mrs. Gary Martin Tindall performed the traditional ceremony of cutting their wedding cake, following the wedding in St. John's Church Hall. L. K. O'Neill proposed the toast to the bride's happiness. The couple spent their honeymoon in the United States and are making their home in Vancouver. (Photo by Gibson's Studio Ltd.)

While I was in this store I saw one customer buying yards of interestingly patterned towelling. It measures 36 inches in width and is priced at $1.89 a yard.

Being a curious type, I just had to find out why this woman was buying so much yardage. Enthusiastically she told me that she intended making draw-drapes for her son's bedroom. She had used some for her own bedroom and all her friends were complimenting her on them. I could see why!

Patterns and colors are glorious. There are designs featuring orchids and other blossoms, some scattered with shells and starfish, seahorses on a golden background and

The 10 Big Reasons for Sealright Sealon Hoods:

1. 100% protection for the entire pouring surface of your milk bottle.

2. Sterilized by 500 degrees F. temperature when applied to the bottle. 3. Easy to remove: Simply break the paper pleat,

The closure is odorless, tasteless, non-pourous because of the plastic coating of paper.

o. Water proof. The closure on the bottle is impervious to menting ice, rain or snov

6. Resists capillary attraction-prevents moisture from creeping under.

7. Tamperproof. Cannot be removed without breaking the pleats that seal the bottle.

8. Can be re-used by consumer as effective cover until bottle is emptied.

Sales value in wholesale stops—eye appeal lends distinction to the bottle; the protection gives confidence.

Double capping is double protection, double convenience because inner cap prevents spilling, assured clean inner surface under the protective hood.

DEEP HATRED LAUNCHED HIM INTO POLITICS

These articles on Adolf Hitler are adapted from material gathered by the author for his monumental history of Nazi Germany, THE RISE AND FALL OF THE THIRD REICH, published by Simon & Schuster, and copyrighted, 1960, by William L. Shirer. It is based largely on the captured secret German documents, on the diaries and memoirs of leading Nazi officials and generals, and on the author's personal experience as an American correspondent in Nazi Germany.

In the spring of 1913, Adolf Hitler left Vienna for Munich. In his book, "Mein Kampf," he contends that he could no longer stand Vienna's "mixture of Czechs, he could no longer stand Vienna's "mixture of Czechs, Poles, Hungarians, Ruthenians, Serbs and Croats, and everywhere the eternal mushroom of humanity-Jews

But there was a more important reason for his departure from Austria. Hitler wanted to escape military service. For three years—since his 21st birthday—he had dodged it. Not, it appears, because he was a coward, but because he loathed serving in the ranks with Slavs and Jews.

When Hitler arrived in Munich, he was 24. To everyone except himself, he must have seemed a total failure.

He had no friends, no home, no job, no prospects. He had, however, an unquenchable confidence in himself. The First World War of fered Hitler an escape from all his failures and frustrations. He got a new start in the later said, "as a deliverance from the distress that had weighed upon me during the days of my youth. I am not ashamed to say that I sank that had the had no friends, no family, thanked heaven." and more Jews."

The South African prime minister strongly expressed the view that he felt the Commonwealth should try to cooperate despite the fact that there may be great differences between nations.

Among the topics he listed as those calling for a concerted approach was the prevening membership.

India had been attacking South Africa in the United trade boycott in his country, he said. Yet South Africa still voted for India's admission.

I'TS SPRING? NO KIDDING!

Ruff, an alleged border collie (which border?) who runs an estate in the Mount Douglas area, enjoys nothing more than a captive audience. Here he exains that spring will spring officially at 12:32 p.m.

Monday, at which time the sun will be directly over the Equator, indicating the start of the vernal equi-nox. Whether his friends understand is doubtful arter all, they're just kids.

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

By Stuart Keate =

My friend George ("Rebel") Mowat is in an angry, sputtering mood these days. Normally the most carefree of souls, Rebel goes into orbit every time someone mentions the "pruning" being done at

For almost 40 years, as the voice of the Grey Line, the lnimitable Reb has been extolling the glories of these bosky dells. In particular, he loves our stately fir trees. Any dells. In particular, he loves our stately fir trees. Any assault on them he regards as a personal affront.

But the firs are being topped, branched and "thinned out." The chirp of the robin is being drowned out by the whine of the power-saw. There's sawdust on the meandering foot-paths. Vast patches of brown earth mark the spot where centuries-old trees, have been uprooted. Quaint, winding roads have been closed off.

The other day Rebel took me on a personally-conducted drive around the park.

He drove out to Clover Point. "Look back there," he cried. "See any big trees? Of course not! Pretty soon the only thing left standing around here will be the totem pole."

I remarked that Clover Point had a rather attractive outlook.

"Sure it has," said Reb. "But what about comfort stations? How far is a man supposed to walk?"

He pulled the car up beside the boat ramp. "What a waste of money!" he snorted. "They tell me it cost $17,000 and it's almost impossible to launch a boat down there. Too rough. If you want to see a real ramp, take a look at the one the James Bay boys built, over by the VMD. Just a lot of working guys, did it all themselves on a voluntary basis. It's a credit to the city."

We drove slowly back towards the park, along the water-

"Look," said Rebel, sadly. "That hillside used to be covered with broom, a beautiful sight. Now it's just about all gone. They're moving the Speakers' Corner over here hoping it will blow them into the sea. Nobody will be there to listen. And where is Marilyn Bell's cairn? All the Eastern tourists ask about it. Can you see it?"

We drove west towards the playing field the sight of tourists ask about it. Can you see it?"

We drove west, towards the playing-field, the sight of which aroused Rebel to pew heights of indignation.

"We used to play baseball out there," he recalled.

"Tremendous crowds. In fact, we got so successful that they threatened to have the police stop us. Ask Pete Sallaway. I told them to bring on the police, we were going to play. So what did they do? They plowed up the field."

We drove on, down Dallas, towards the famous old horse-chestnut tree which leans at a 45-degree angle into the street, buffeted by a half a century of gales.

"The last straw," said Rebel. "I heard the other day they were thinking of cutting that down. Somebody's got to stop this destruction."

On the way back to the hotel, along Belleville Street.

we paused to look at the topiary garden in the old Pendray home; now Loretto Hall.

Suddenly Rebel slapped his hand on the dashboard. "Stop!" he cried. "Stop! Look what they've done! Cut down that fine, old hawthorne hedge! One of the attractions of a man bereft, forlorn, defeated.
